

Instructions to Contributors

The English edition of Chinese Journal of Integrative Medicine is edited and published by the Chinese Journal of Integrated Traditional and Western Medicine Press. Original scientific papers of advanced clinical and experimental medicine in the field of integration of traditional Chinese and Western medicine are expected. Articles must not have been published elsewhere and are not under simultaneous consideration by other publications.

Manuscripts

The manuscripts should be prepared in accordance with the Uniform Requirements for Manuscripts Submitted to Biomedical Journals (The complete document appears in The New England Journal of Medicine 1997; 336 : 309-315). The manuscripts should be written in English or Chinese, each copy 3000-5000 words. The English manuscript should be typed double space on A4 paper.

Title Page

This page includes the title of the article which should be concise but informative; name of each author in English and Chinese; name of department (s) and institution (s) to which the work was done; address, telephone number and E-mail of author responsible for correspondence about the manuscript; and any grant support should be mentioned on this page.

Abstract and Key Words

The abstract (of no more than 300 words) should consist of four paragraphs, labeled Objective, Methods, Results, and Conclusions. They should state the purpose of the study or investigation, basic procedures, main findings (give specific data and their statistical significance), and the conclusions. Below the abstract provide 3-8 key words. Use terms from the medical subject headings (MeSH), and the traditional Chinese medical subject headings, present terms may be used. Avoid abbreviations in the title, abstract and key words.

Text

Introduction State the purpose of the article. Give a brief, relevant background to the study.

Methods Describe the subjects (patients or laboratory animals, and the controls, including criteria for selection) clearly. Describe the methods, apparatus and procedures in sufficient detail. Identify precisely all drugs and chemicals used, including generic name(s), dose(s) and route (s) of administration.

Results Present the results in the text, tables and illustrations concisely, do not repeat in the text all the data in the tables or illustrations; summarize only important observations.

Discussion Emphasize the new and important aspects of the study and the conclusions that follow from them. Include the implications of the findings and their limitations, as well as implications for future research.

State new hypotheses when warranted, but clearly label them as such.

References

Number the references consecutively in the order in which they are first mentioned in the text. When listing references, abbreviate names of journals according to Index Medicus. Note: List authors and/or editors up to 3; if more than 3, list the first 3 authors followed by 'et al'.

Examples of forms of references are given below.

1. Wang MS, Li J, Di HX, et al. Clinical study on effect of Astragalus Injecion and its immuno-regulation action in treating chronic aplastic anemia. Chin J Integr Med 2007;13(2):98-102.

Authors are responsible for the accuracy and completeness of their references and for correct citation of the text. References from Chinese journals should be translated into English.

Tables

Type each of the tables with double space and with number and title. Data should be arranged clearly and concisely. Footnotes should be kept to a minimum. Columns must be provided with headings and units.

Illustrations

Figures should be submitted as glossy black and white photographs. Name(s) of author(s), figure number and top of figure should be given on a label pasted on the back of the illustration. Type legends for illustrations double spaced, starting on a separated page. When symbols, arrows, numbers, or letters are used to identify parts of the illustrations, explain each one clearly. Identify the original magnification and method of staining in photomicrographs.

Units of Measurement

Measurement of length, height, weight and volume should be reported in metric units (meter, kilogram, or liter) or their decimal multiples. All hematologic and clinical chemical measurement should be reported in the metric system in terms of the International System of Units (SI).

Abbreviations and Terminology

Use only standard abbreviations. All abbreviations and acronyms are to be spelled out in full on their first appearance in the text. Herbs are to be presented by their common, pharmaceutical and pinyin (Chinese phoneticize) or Latin names. Acupuncture terms are to be conformed to World Health Organization nomenclature.

Submission of Manuscripts

All manuscripts should be sent to the Editorial Office, Chinese Journal of Integrative Medicine, 1 Caochang, Xiyuan, Beijing, 100091, China. Tel: 86-10-62877592/62886827. Fax: 86-10-62874291. E-mail: cjim@cjim.cn.

Overseas authors can submit their manuscripts via E-mail. The Editorial Office recommends authors who can speak Chinese to submit their manuscripts through the Journal's on-line manuscript processing system at <http://www.cjim.cn>.

Manuscripts must be accompanied with a letter of recommendation, a covering letter signed by all authors, and the name, address, post code, Tel/Fax number and e-mail address of the corresponding author, who is responsible for revision and final approval of the proofs.

All contributions are subject to peer review, and rejected manuscripts will not be returned to authors unless specifically requested. Authors are supposed to pay publication fee if their manuscripts are accepted. The publisher will provide the author (s) 20 reprints of the article and 2 copies of the journal free of charge.
